Continued from Page One

It will be a circumstance to connect the man with mystery. The other daughter, Mrs. Florence Critchlow has been living alone in the Tabor home for some time. On Saturday last she discovered the remains in the trunk buried in the basement, and after consulting her attorney, notified the officials. She is a talented magazine writer, and at the present time has the manuscript nearly completed of a book entitled "My Charmed Life." She declined to answer questions at the inquest, and is in custody of the officers. She has made a request that the remains of her sister be buried in the family lot at Lawton, and that she be permitted to be present to offer prayer. This request will be granted. The present whereabouts of the mother, Mrs. Sarah Tabor, and the brother, Walter, are unknown. They were last heard from in the state of Oregon, and the officers are making every effort possible to locate them. There are many theories advanced as a solution to the tragedy, but probably not until the mother and son are located and brought back, will the mystery be solved. There are many reports that may later have a bearing on the case. One for instance that the neighbors heard Mrs. Tabor sobbing and crying in an outbuilding about five o'clock in the morning of August 1916. Attorney Glenn E. Warner is assisting Prosecutor Horace Adams at the inquest, and Attorneys Earl L. Burhans and Wm. J. Barnard are looking after the interests of the sister Florence. It has been a busy week for the sheriff's force and Prosecutor's office, and there will be no let up in either office until the mystery is solved and the guilty ones brought to the bar of justice.

RIVERSIDE

George Cummins has sold his farm to David Paulin and family and Charles Brassline who have taken possession. Mr. Cummins has moved onto his farm east of Paw Paw known as the Oliver Warner farm.

"The best binding for a Bible is shoe leather. Say, What is the Bible to you?"

"Pennsylvania Dutch."

"Pennsylvania Dutch" is a patois supposed to be a corruption of South German. Early settlers in Pennsylvania were from the upper Rhine and this dialect has grown out of the language they spoke.
